

DREAM OF DAYLIGHT

Letting light into a galley style kitchen or a long space where there's only an exit to the outside at one end of the room is essential if you want to keep it from feeling dark and enclosed. This Häcker Systemat kitchen from Laurence Pidgeon (from £20,000) features gloss lacquer cabinetry and white Corian® worktops which maintain a feeling of lightness. The steel framed patio doors and windows are by The Cotswold Casement Company

'Kitchen 'space' is continually extending, both physically and visually. Nowadays it most often includes not just the dining and living areas but also outside, opening onto a terrace or into the garden'

SEAMLESS LOOK

Left Almost frameless, double glazed Sky-Frame doors by Cantifix are known for good sound and thermal control and they are the focal point of this extension project by Simon Gill Architects. Shown is the Modulnova Twenty kitchen in Satin Lacquer, from £25,000, DesignSpaceLondon

NATURE RETREAT

Right Spacious and functional, the Vipp shelter is a 55 square metre, two-level space made using a steel grid structure with sliding glass doors and skylights which frame the landscape. It can be delivered around the world and installed at a location of your choice. It's from £408,000 including a fully fitted interior but excluding delivery and installation
